IN my quest to Yelp all things booze I am SHOCKED that I over looked Marquis..

I used to frequent Marquis a few years back when I lived in the West End..since moving I haven't been back in a while..but now that I think of the great selection and service I had..I just may have to make the trek across the bridge and go back!

They carry a variety of wines from regions around the world..some of the wines are hard to find and often not seen in wine specialty stores..they staff are all super knowledgeable and I always feel confident that they will help me find what I need..or want...no need:)

Vancouver constantly is rated as one of the most livable cities in the world to live. For many aspects of living here that is true. But wine is a sore spot for me here in Vancouver.

There generally is a limited selection at most stores, and the prices are highly inflated. It kills me to see the pricing and selection differences here in Vancouver vs. someplace like the Bay Area.

Most livable city. Ha. Get the wine prices and selection in line and perhaps we can talk!

Given the regulatory constraints, Marquis is one of the better spots in Vancouver to get a nice variety from knowledgeable staff. They have one of the better selections I have found in Vancouver from value wines through premiums.

I still much prefer the pricing and selection south of the border though, and make sure to bring back my limit on every trip!

But unfortunately that just isn't enough (no, I'm not a lush - but I do enjoy wine with food).

Tip: Marquis does offer a nice series of themed wine tastings on a fairly regular basis so that you can sample their offerings before purchasing. Check their newsletter for details as they don't publicize them much beyond that.

Marquis really does have a wonderful selection of wine and personnel who know about the stuff. The shop is well-stocked, bright, welcoming and offers wine from BC and much further afield.

Their newsletter is really informative and includes "staff picks" that are often great value wines that drink way above the price. So it's definitely worthwhile to sign up for their email updates to stay on top of what they're bringing in and when they have specials on.

They also go above wine sales and host some special events that allow you to embrace wine, food and winemaking. An upcoming event features a French winemaker with lunch and wine tasting. Drinking and learning, together at last!!

If you are the hostess with the most-ess and want to throw an exclusive party with wines that people will talk about for months to come you have to visit Marquis. John Clerides as the rest of his staff, eat, drink (of course) live and breathe wine and everything to do with wine. The wines are very unique and encompass a world variety. From Italian San Giovese to Barbaresco, Brunello to local BC made varietals (Joie is my favourite) you can never not leave with something in your brown wine bag. Fine champagnes and sparkling wines are also stocked. I actually saw Hungarian wines (the good kind) for a reasonable price. You can also find steamware, decanters, wine gifts and all wine associated accessories.

Local, Chilean, Argentinian, Australian, Spanish...if it's wine, Marquis will have it. They really are one of Vancouver's premier wine stores. They make a point of carrying a range of local products, and if you take a look through their newsletter you'll see that they also have wines that range from "avant-garde" to "classic" and "big game". So, whatever your vintage, you will be happy to discover Marquis. They also have periodic wine events, and here's the best thing of all: they deliver! (for a $5 fee and a minimum order of one case.) Cheers!
